

Driving at Work - How to Check Your Vehicle

Driving at work? Make sure your vehicle is up to the task before you set off

Course Overview

Driving is one of the most dangerous work activities. It can be dangerous not only for the people driving, but the public too and anyone working alongside the road, such as police and maintenance workers.

Maintaining your vehicle is a key duty in road safety. Work vehicles are work equipment and it's important everyone takes steps to ensure they are safe for use. Our Checking your Vehicle Before Driving at Work short course details some of the basic vehicle checks employees can undertake before making a work-related road trip.

This course is available as both a Take 5 and a Toolbox Talk, suitable for small group learning.
