

Health and Safety for Directors

Health and Safety training for senior level staff.

Course Overview

It's every company director's nightmare: there's been a major health and safety incident and people are hurt.

Prioritising health and safety at an organisation's senior level can prevent accidents like this from taking place. Through continual assessment, review, and improvement, directors can build a solid health and safety culture.

This Take 5 course guides senior leaders through the process.
