

Remote Working

Our online Remote Working course explores what employees and employers need to do to ensure all workers are safe, wherever they are based

Course Overview

With an estimated 4 million of us working remotely in the UK, the number of us doing our jobs outside the traditional office environment can only go up.

Whether it's in a home office, a working hub or even on a train, remote working can be very beneficial. It can offer greater flexibility and eliminate commuting. However, it can also bring new challenges.

Our Remote Working eLearning course enables employees and employers alike to make sure all workers are safe and healthy – wherever they choose to do their jobs.

Key Learning Points

- Protecting your personal safety when working alone
- Protecting your personal safety when visiting customers
- The benefits of home working and working in a hub
- How to stay safe when travelling
- The importance of DSE and dynamic risk assessments
