Respect in the Workplace

Empower employees and develop a culture of respect and equality in the workplace

Course Overview

Our Respect in the Workplace eLearning course examines types of discrimination that may affect the workplace. Looking at issues such as gender, race, age, and weight, the course highlights how important it is to foster an equal and diverse environment in order to be an effective team.

The course also explores harassment in the workplace, and looks at ways in which organisations can promote respect using specific policies and laws to secure a consistent level of understanding across all members of staff.

Key Learning Points

• Identify and respond to discrimination and harassment in the workplace

• Understand the differences between equality and diversity, as well knowing why these factors are important in the workplace

• Promote equality and diversity in order to value and support all employees through respect

• Provide a higher level of service for customers by recognising and valuing differences

• Plan and evaluate policies to improve business conduct around respect in the workplace
